

TREADWELL PLANT TO RESUME OPERATIONS

Mining and Smelting Enterprises to Be Started in 30 Days With New Machinery and Dry Concentrating Plant. And Work Begins on Boggs' Mine.

(From Tuesday's Daily.)
Authentic reports from Mayer give the gratifying news that the George A. Treadwell Mining company have practically decided to resume operations on their extensive mine and smelting enterprises in that section, and inside of thirty days every department will be in operation.

Some few months ago their big smelter was blown in, and the ores from their many mines contiguous were put through a thorough course of treatment in order to arrive at a definite conclusion as to the method of treating them, and as well to determine the valuation of their mineral characteristics. These important problems have been solved, and now they propose to resume and operate hereafter on a basis of permanency.

One of the disagreeable conditions they have experienced in mine work has been inadequate machinery to handle the immense volume of water in the Hackberry mine, and until that was remedied it was decided to close the same down until a new pump could be installed.

This is now being done, a plant of this character having just arrived and is now being placed in position. When it is in working order, mine work will be initiated at this point on a larger scale than ever before. Operations are also to begin at once on the Boggs mine of the group owned by this corporation, which two mining propositions will afford a steady and profitable product for their smelter at Mayer. The Hackberry mine is said to be looking better than at any time in its past history, and the management as well as the miner believe that this particular piece of ground is one of the best in the district, and itself will support a large smelter when opened up on the plan outlined.

This company is better equipped as regards general conditions to operate than most companies ordinarily are. Its mining interests are situated within three miles of its smelting plant, and it has a narrow gauge railroad that connects them with the main line of the S. F. P. and P., and with the latter there is only a short haul to the reduction works by a spur from the main line to the dump at the plant. The company is likewise desirably situated to handle and treat custom ores that may be entrusted to it.

Another desirable asset of this company is the water service it owns, having a gravity pipe line in operation from springs in the mountains about seven miles distant, which is utilized for the smelting plant, and for the domestic purposes of Mayer, the latter now assuming a prominent regard as one of the coming towns of this section of Arizona.

Another indication of the merit of this company's affairs is also given publicity by the introduction of a dry concentrating plant that is now under course of erection at the site of their smelter. This new method of treatment is being inaugurated by a Mr. Wood, and while he is not associated with the Treadwell company, and will operate his plant independently of the company, the introduction of this method of treating the mineral product will necessarily be of untold benefit to the miner or to this company, if the service is deemed of advantage.

Under the plan now outlined the Treadwell should have a profitable enterprise soon in operation.

FINED FIVE DOLLARS.

Fred Hawkins Assessed for Grabbing Denny Harrington.

Suing for $5,000 damages, and securing only $5 was the outcome of the suit brought by Denny Harrington against City Marshal Fred Hawkins, of that place. A large number of witnesses testified in the case yesterday, and the testimony was very conflicting. Several months ago Hawkins in his capacity as officer made an arrest that displeased Harrington. Later on he followed the officer down the street, and applied insulting epithets to him behind his back. Hawkins suddenly wheeled and grabbed Harrington by the nape of the neck, who claims that he was assaulted. He tried to get Justice St. James to issue a warrant of arrest for Hawkins, but the justice could not see it that way. Then a warrant was obtained in Prescott, but when District Attorney Ellinwood heard of it he ordered the same annulled, on the ground that Hawkins could not be lawfully arrested for performing his duty as an officer. As a last resort, Harrington brought suit, and Judge Sloan assessed the damages at $5.

HOUSE INDULGES IN A TALKFEST

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—Insurance, hazing, the suffering of the Russian Jews and immigration were all the topics under discussion by the house today under a general leave to talk. The only business done was to send the canal appropriation bill to conference.

MATRIMONIAL EVENT.

(From Tuesday's Daily.)
It may be a surprise to all except the principals to it to learn that William Greenwood and Miss Elsie Ford were united in the holy bonds of matrimony last night at the home of the bride's mother, Rev. Father Bennett, of the Episcopal church officiating. The parties to this happy event are

The board of supervisors of Yavapai county has taken action in one matter that should be emulated by every board in the territory, comments the Phoenix Republican in referring to the article that was published exclusively in the Journal Miner a few days ago.

If the plan cannot be exactly imitated, some similar one may be devised to serve the same purpose. The action referred to is the placing of signs at the intersection or junction of important roads throughout the county, so the traveler unacquainted with the country may at frequent intervals find out where he is "at."

Important as this is in Yavapai county, it is even more so in those counties having expansive deserts within their jurisdiction. Such signs are a nice thing in any country, even the older settled regions of the east, where there are frequent dwelling houses at which inquiry may be made or help secured in time of trouble. But in all the southwest where one is often forced to travel for miles without encountering a soul of a human habitation, such signboards are actual lifesavers, particularly in the summer time. They lead to food and water, for the lack of which dozens in Arizona perish annually, and that through no fault of their own. Some, of course, meet death through their own carelessness, ignorance or lack of common sense in undertaking impossible things, but more are lost through the urgent necessity of some business enterprise, involving desert journeys, by attempting to follow inaccurate information and misleading advice. And these victims are mainly in the desert counties.

In the mountain counties the signboards are desirable as a help to those who are not necessarily in any peril but who might be greatly inconvenienced by a little information at the right time; moreover they are an encouragement to tourists and investors to journey into the hills, where may be seen the real resources of the country.

The Yavapai supervisors have been fortunate in securing from mining companies plenty of old pipe and metal uprights, at an expense of nothing but the hauling. The wings are also to be made of metal, painted black, with white letters. It is estimated that the signs will cost about $3 each, and people who travel the roads will be asked to plant the signs without charge. It is not unlikely that the material for a few signs might be had for nothing here, if the request was made, or could be bought at a minimum cost. But the signs must necessarily be of metal, else they will not long withstand the weather, and what is still more destructive, the conscienceless wretches who travel the desert, and use the boards for kindling. The latter statement is made for the reason that a few years ago the county did at considerable expense, erect quite a number of wooden signboards on the desert roads, nearly every one of which has succumbed to the ravages of the vandal.

well known to all in this city, and both are universally popular. The bride was born in Prescott, and from childhood has been esteemed for her many lovable traits and charming manners, having a large circle of friends and acquaintances, who will be pleased to learn of the happy event that cements her to him of her choice.

"Billy" Greenwood, the groom, has been for many years the right hand man of the Samuel Hill Hardware Co., and is an industrious and frugal young man, with a clear head for business pursuits. He also has a large number of friends, but of the many who are acquainted with him, few were aware of the step he was taking. In common with all, the Journal-Miner offers its congratulations to this happy pair, and wishes them the best in happiness and prosperity in the journey through life.

CITY NEWS IN BRIEF

(From Sunday's Daily.)

From the Coast.
R. M. Hockaday returned on last night's train from a trip to Los Angeles and is at the Burke.

Hillside Visitor.
Morse Darnell, the merchant of the above place, is in the city on a business trip. That section is reported by him as progressing in its mining affairs.

Sale of Property.
F. M. Drescher has disposed of a lot and improvements in the vicinity of the Sisters' hospital in West Prescott to the Sisters of Mercy, the consideration named being $1,200.

In the Saddle.
Master David Levy, the bright little son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Levy, is sporting a new saddle and an old burro today, much to the envy of his playmates. He says he will organize a juvenile corps of roughriders.

Poland Mine.
F. C. Elliot, the engineer of the Poland Mining company, was a visitor to the city yesterday, and returns to his duties tomorrow. He gives a good account of that company, and says that the production of concentrates is very heavy from the 20-stamp mill.

Changed His Course.
Joe Mayer was a passenger on last night's train from the north, much to the surprise of his many friends. He had been to Flagstaff and other points on the Santa Fe main line, where he was called on business matters. He goes to Mayer this morning.

Leaves This Section.
George O. Ford, who has been developing some mining ground in the Black Hills section, and who was formerly a merchant of this city, leaves today for Los Angeles, to remain permanently. He tersely states that his proposition was a failure.

Probate Matters.
Judge Hicks yesterday granted an order to H. M. Gibbs, administrator of the estate of the late W. M. Munds, to compromise a debt due, and also compromise a note due for the face value of the same. The aggregate sum of these two instruments was $337, which sum goes to the estate for distribution.

Mismatched Couple.
In the district court yesterday the case of Hattie Bell against George Bell was placed on the calendar, and default entered against the defendant. This is a suit for divorce, the couple disagreeing, and Mr. Bell does not answer the legal grievances of his wife.

Wedding Today.
Judge Hicks leaves this morning for Skull valley and this evening will unite in marriage Alfred Stepp and Miss Moffet, both of whom reside in that locality. The parties to this event are well known and very popular. Mr. Stepp has recently built and furnished a comfortable home for his bride, and is a prosperous and deserving young man. Both are to be congratulated.

Cupid Was Wrong.
In the district court yesterday a decree of divorce was granted to Jane Elizabeth Kaeting from A. C. Kaeting. Mrs. Kaeting has been a resident of this section for over four years, while her husband has resided in Chicago for that time, and deserted her before she came to this section, refusing in all these years to contribute anything toward the support of herself and child. The separation is merited on the part of the woman.

Street Car Plan.
The color scheme of the Prescott street electric system has been moulded. Upon the operation of the Cortez street line to the depot, a green car will be placed on that end to run to West Prescott points. The yellow car will start from the Junction of Cortez and Gurley and run to Whipple. The power poles of transmission will be placed in position at once, and the new green car will arrive in a few weeks. When the red car will be placed in service is not decided on.

A Colored Controversy.
The case of Luella Hollowell against Mrs. M. A. Reed, was heard in the district court yesterday, and the same was submitted to the court. The principals to this legal airing are colored people, and the differences of opinion were originally before the justice's court.

At that time Stewart, the leading man, endeavored to leave town with an aggregation of very bum actors, and also the goods and trunk belonging to Hollowell. Mrs. Reed stepped in and claimed the property, hence the suit as to ownership in the higher court.

(From Tuesday's Daily.)
Was a Witness.
Night Officer King of Jerome was in the city yesterday as a witness in the Harrington-Hawkins case.

From the Senator.
Mrs. A. J. Pickrell wife of the well-known mining operator at that point, is visiting friends in the city. She is at the Burke.

In After Ore.
E. W. Brooks, associated with the Arizona Smelting company as its southern representative in ore buying, with headquarters at Phoenix, is in the city on business matters.

To Buy Goods.
P. A. Simon, the rustling merchant and butcher of Crown King, is visiting the city on business matters. He is at the Prescott house.

Chaparral Mining Men.
E. G. and P. P. Weil, mining and mill men of the Chaparral portion of Big Bug, are visiting the city, and are at the Prescott house.

McCabe Capitalist.
Larry Martin, of McCabe, was a passenger on last night's train from the Big Bug metropolis. He is on business trip, and social intercourse as well.

Diamond Joe Delayed.
The Diamond Jo was four hours late last night being detained at Ash Fork. Jo has been on time to the minute on its northbound trips.

Removes to Prescott.
John Massing has removed from Crown King to Prescott and will engage with his brother in the transfer business. He has many friends here who will welcome his return.

You Will Find
Live local news on every page of the Journal-Miner except that reserved for legal notices. The news is right off of the stove, nothing of the warmed over variety.

Quick Trip.
Frank Leckleider, of Poland, a prince of good fellows was a visitor to Prescott for a few hours on Sunday, coming in and going back via the buggy route. Business and social duties called him here.

Snowing in the Bradshaws.
Arrivals on last night's train from Crown King say that snow was falling in the Bradshaws yesterday morning, and the indications were that the storm was a general one throughout that section.

Looks Good.
William Carder, of the Blue Bird group of mines near Crown King, came in on last night's train. He gives an excellent account of mining in that section, and returns today to his duties. He is a competent mining man.

Plenty of Money.
C. B. Linn, the jeweler, is making all a present of money, and yesterday every one in the city was handed a "bunch" of greenbacks. See him before the supply gives out.

Hassayamper Pilgrim.
Judge Louis St. James, who dishes out justice in the Jerome country, as justice of the peace, came over from the big copper camp last evening. He speaks of the tidal wave of reform as about to engulf that center, and believes that it will be of short duration. The city officials have decided to close the gambling games, and the intention is to make it effective on New Year's day.

Drunk and Disorderly.
A municipal harvest of the inebriated was before Judge McLane yesterday morning in the shape of seven well soaked Mexicans, and white men, all coming under the category of red eye. As they were lined up in a row there were all kinds of apologies and entreaties offered the judge, and as each told his tale of woe, and promised to be good, this even-tempered jurist gave them ten days as a float-er, except to one who was sent below for sixty days.

Hooper Visitor.
Thomas Roach was an arrival from Hooper last evening, having business interests to look after in the city. He will return tomorrow. Mr. Roach reports mining matters in that section as showing up well, and that the coming year should be a favorable one to those who depend upon having water to assist them in mining operations. That section, he says, is soaked to a great depth.
